

Talk

From a shoe box to e-accounts: it can be done !

About the talk

The 69th congress already included a talk about different ways of rethinking how we organise our core business of bookkeeping. After this analysis of new models and continuing on from what we started in Lyon, it's now time for action!

More practical than theoretical, this talk aims to reflect the current trends of practices which have already, partially or totally, switched to digital for their traditional activities: collection of documents, online accounting, Smartphone applications, automation of processes, etc. With the direct consequences this has on the operational framework, organisation and profitability of our traditional activity, find out how some practices have firmly entered the third industrial revolution, the ICT revolution, to the extent that they are now protagonists. Now that the way has been opened, come and find out the keys to success and go for it!

Key points

- Benefiting from what our colleagues have to say about the changes they have made
- Learning about how solutions have been implemented
- Knowing the failures and successes
- Having an inventory of practices

Objectives

- To understand a few solutions, their benefits and their limitations
- To identify any risks, traps for the unwary
- To class the solutions implemented and whether they suit your firm

Subjects covered

- Feedback from four practices on their experience
- Description of solutions
- Considering client needs

Nicolas CABANES
Accountant

Jacques-Philippe CHEVALIER
Accountant

Dimitar KRASTEVA
Accountant

Guillaume PROUST
Accountant

Claude ROBIN
Accountant